

SHARP RELEASES WORLD'S LARGEST LCD TV

Sharp is set to revolutionise the home theatre market with the release of the spectacular AQUOS LC-65G5X. With a massive 65" (165cm) screen, it is the largest commercially available LCD TV on the Australian market today.

Boasting Sharp's newly developed Full HD resolution (1920 x 1080) LCD Panel, the LC-65G5X also features the new "Four-Wavelength" backlight system to ensure crisp, clear definition.

High Brightness of 450cd/m² and the excellent contrast ratio of 800:1 combined with a viewing angle of H170 degrees and V170 degrees ensures superb quality viewing from anywhere in the room with no image distortion.

Along with the highest picture quality you'll also enjoy Sharp's state of the art audio technology delivering that full theatre sound. The LC-65G5X features a 1 Bit Digital amplifier with high-power (10W + 10W) audio output plus Dolby Virtual Surround Sound for a total home cinema experience.

TV program recording, playback and displaying still images are made easy thanks to the built-in PC Card Slot. The LC-65G5X also includes a bank of terminal inputs including Video, S Video, Component DVI, SCART, plus a Monitor out and Headphone jack.

Deputy Managing Director of Sharp Corporation of Australia, Denis Kerr, said the 65" LC-65G5X is testament to Sharp's commitment to LCD technology.

"We believe that LCD is far superior to plasma TV in terms of image quality, energy consumption, brightness and life", said Mr. Kerr. "The LC-65G5X is the result of extensive research and considerable development investment by Sharp into larger screen technology and we are anticipating a very positive response from consumers."

The LC-65G5X also includes standard Sharp LCD features like built in Teletext function, picture and text functions, 60,000 hour long life backlight and Optical Picture Control.

The LC-65G5X is available January 2006 and RRP is $27,999.
